AMERICAN 3D ARMY RUMBLES NEARER TO SAARBRUECKEN

Rich Saar Basin is Threatened As The Yanks Advance

RESISTANCE IS STIFF

Nazis Driven From City In Swift Push Through Strasbourg

By International News Service
The American Third Army rumbled forward into Germany today, threatening the rich Saar Basin and its key city of Saarbruecken.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's armored spearheads hammered in the direction of the city from the north and south. Enemy resistance stiffened, but Third Army units seized the towns of Ueberkingen, Hagenburg and Remering, 12 to 14 miles below Saarbruecken, and 20 miles north of the city scored further gains near Kesslingen and Merzig.

South of the Third Army sector, the Allies hurriedly celebrated the liberation of historic Strasbourg and rushed on with the business of completing the eviction of Germans from eastern France.

In a swift push through the streets of Strasbourg, Brig. Gen. Jacques LeClerc's French units and elements of the American Seventh Army drove the Nazis out of the city. The French tri-color freely fluttered from the public buildings, and Strasbourg once again was fully in French hands.

Front line dispatches indicated that LeClerc's force, attached to the Seventh Army, fanned out from the city to battle for bridgeheads across the Rhine River into the Reich. One report stated the French actually had crossed the Rhine and prevented the Nazis from destroying a bridge that can be used in hurdling the great border river.

The Seventh Army Yanks, in the meantime, drove southward from Strasbourg while the French First Army came north from the Mulhouse area. The two armies sought to effect a junction on the west bank of the Rhine. Their fusion would close the jaws of a giant pincer upon an estimated 50,000 Germans in the Vosges Mountain area.

North on the western front, the Allied offensive thundered forward, but progress was relatively slow. The weather was bad. Enemy resistance was stubborn.

Senate To Probe Cigarette Shortage

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—The Senate War Investigating Committee decided today to look into the cigarette shortage.

A preliminary exploration will start immediately and the committee will decide next week whether to sanction a full-dress inquiry into the scanty supply of smokes available for fighting men overseas and workers in the United States.

The investigation was suggested by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), who declared "the shortage is a blow at the war effort when it hits the boys at the front."

UP-TO-PRESS-TIME WAR BULLETINS

(By International News Service)

YANKS HOLD FIRM BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS SAAR

With the U. S. Third Army—American Third Army elements today held a firm bridgehead across the Saar River in the Postroff-Baerendorf area some 27 miles south of Saarbruecken.

High ground is in American hands in this area. German troops pulled out of Petersbach after falling in a counter-attack yesterday.

Numerous enemy attempts to drive the Americans back across the Saar have failed. Three tanks led one enemy counter-thrust with infantry at dawn today and scuttled away under American fire. The entire foothold area remains under constant German artillery fire and fighting continues in most sectors.

The town of Butzdorf, three miles inside Germany and south of the Luxembourg border, was cleared out and five pill-boxes captured.

Prisoners disclosed that civilians in Saarburg have been ordered to evacuate the town by noon today.

BATTLE OF AACHEN REGION ROARS TO A CLIMAX

London—The German High Command asserted today that the defensive battle in the Aachen region is roaring to a climax, with the Americans allegedly throwing in fresh reserves "to make up their heavy losses." These units were used in the sector between Geilenkirchen and Eschweiler, the communique claimed.

It alleged that the doughboys were thrown back in fierce counter-attacks and claimed that in the dense Hurtgen Forest the Yanks were pinned down in bitter tree-to-tree fighting.

The enemy high command asserted that German troops still are fighting in the ancient fortresses of Metz but admitted strong pressure north of Belfort on the Alsace-Lorraine border.

"Apart from London and Antwerp, the area of Liege was particularly heavily attacked during the day and night by German long-range weapons," the communique added.

To Step Up Production of Ammunition For Army

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—J. A. Krug, chairman of the War Production Board, announced that production of machine-gun and rifle bullets must be more than doubled and the output of mortar shells "substantially increased" as the result of a direct and sudden appeal from General Dwight D. Eisenhower. Mr. Krug said General Eisenhower had reported that in the last few weeks his men had been firing 30-caliber ammunition "four times faster than anyone expected," and he added that "I think it means that will tax our production capacity to the limit."

WAR FUND APPEAL IS RENEWED HERE

Many Have Not As Yet Contributed; Are Urged To Do So at Once

FAR SHORT OF QUOTA

Is Bristol going to fall behind in the drive to raise $48,000 for the National War Fund? That is the question agitating those interested in seeing that this fund reaches the quota.

A large number of the districts in Bucks County have gone over the top or at least reached their quota. But Bristol is lagging way behind.

Due to the fact that there is no house to house solicitation for funds, many who otherwise would ordinarily contribute have not as yet made any donation. The money is urgently needed and it is used to support many worthwhile efforts for the men and women of the United States, who are in the service as well as the activities which have been co-ordinated and are supported by the National War Fund.

Many prospective contributors are losing sight of the fact that one-third of the total amount subscribed is left right here in this district.

Barbara Popkin Has A Party On Anniversary

Refreshments were served in the dining room which was decorated in pink and blue. Favors were paper hats and small baskets of candy.

Others present: Allen Opylko, Albert George, Sandra Jean Pearson, Beverly Taylor, Lawrence Popkin, Gail Priestley, Hermina Karp, William Clifton, Mrs. Kenneth Clifton, Mrs. William Taylor, Mrs. Edgar Opylko, Mrs. Phillip Popkin, Mrs. Sidney Popkin.

BOY FOR GALIONS

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Galioni, Pine street, yesterday.

Still indecisive are the election results in legislative districts in Clearfield, Lancaster, Luzerne, Westmoreland and Allegheny counties.

Aged Bensalem Township Resident Dies Suddenly

An aged resident of Bensalem Township, James Slavin, 89, was found dead in bed at his home yesterday shortly before noon.

The octogenarian had resided in Philadelphia before moving to Mechanicsville Road a few years ago. His wife was shocked upon going to his room to arouse him from what she supposed was a late sleep, to find that death had occurred.

In addition to his wife, Elizabeth Slavin, he is survived by several daughters and sons.

The rites will be conducted from the Haefner funeral home, Cornwells Heights, on Monday morning at nine o'clock. High Requiem Mass will be sung in St. Charles' Church at 10 o'clock. Burial will be in Green Mount Cemetery, Philadelphia. Friends may call Sunday evening at the funeral home.

Kenesaw M. Landis Dies

Chicago—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, 73, died at 6:35 a. m. E. W. T. today after a seven weeks' illness.

The white-haired arbiter of baseball has been a patient in St. Luke's Hospital since Oct. 2 when he entered for treatment of a severe cold and for a rest. He suffered several setbacks, the latest yesterday and early today his condition was given as "low." Previously, hospital attaches said he was progressing satisfactorily.

Landis this year missed the first World Series since becoming commissioner in 1921. Recently at a meeting of representatives of the American and National leagues in Chicago it was decided to offer him a seven year contract as head of the baseball world when the present contract expired next January.

HIGH SCHOOL AWAITS FEATURE ASSEMBLY

The Dixie Dandy Dog and Monkey Circus To Appear Next Month

RAMBLER IS HONORED

One of the long-anticipated assembly programs of Bristol high school is scheduled for next month.

It is "The Dixie Dandy Dog and Monkey Circus," which will be a feature at the high school.

Among the features by the animal cast is "Trusty," the dog with a college education; and "Yago," a large baboon; also "Bobo," said to be the only still-walking monkey in the world.

R. Lloyd Hawkins, who with his wife presents the program, will also give a short zoological talk.

"The Rambler," Bristol high school newspaper, has been given a first class rating for the year 1943-44 by the National Scholastic Press Association.

"The Rambler" received special commendation for war effort coverage.

G. O. P. Wins Lead In Penna. House

HARRISBURG, Nov. 25—In one of the closest legislative elections in the history of the Commonwealth, the Republicans apparently have elected a majority to the House of Representatives, winning full control of the General Assembly.

According to an unofficial tally made here by Republicans with a partial G. I. vote count included, the G. O. P. has elected 105 House members. The Democrats have won 98 seats and five contests are undecided pending the final tabulation of soldier ballots.

On the basis of the information received here, the Republicans will be able to elect a speaker and organize the House when the 1945 session opens Jan. 2.

The G. O. P. had no difficulty in maintaining control of the State Senate. In the upper chamber the Republicans are assured of at least 32 of the 50 seats.

The House has a total membership of 298 and 195 votes are needed for a constitutional majority for passing legislation. However, a bare majority of the elected members, present when the session convenes in six weeks, can choose the speaker and control the appointment of committees and personnel.

The House fight remained in doubt until late this afternoon when Republican leaders claimed that the re-election of Representative Tilghman A. Freed, of Allentown, by a 75-vote margin as a result of the soldier vote, and the reported victory of Representative Gus Wachhaus, blind Shenandoah merchant, assured them of control of the chamber.

Still indecisive are the election results in legislative districts in Clearfield, Lancaster, Luzerne, Westmoreland and Allegheny counties.

He entered the service April 1, 1943, and received his gunnery training at Harlingen, Texas, before coming to Italy in July of this year.

To the People of this Community

Geography fights on the side of Japan. We are still a long way from seizing bases even hundreds of miles from Tokyo. Assuming that we conquer Shanghai we would still be 1,000 miles from the heart of Japan, twice the distance London is from Berlin. Although England was only 21 miles from the nearest German territory and only 400 to 500 miles from the heart of Germany's war industries, we were at war for 14 months with the Nazis before we bombed any objective within the Reich.

Military men say that it may cost billions of dollars more to beat Japan than it took to wreck Hitler's mad scheme of world conquest. The 14 billion dollars which Americans are asked to lend their government in the Sixth War Loan are urgently needed. Your personal objective of a minimum of an extra $100 War Bond may seem small when viewed against the national goal. However, every war loan succeeds because millions of Americans do their part. The millions of individual purchases of War Bonds spell success and new backing for our fighting men. The road to Tokyo may be long and bloody but its distance and cost in lives will be reduced in proportion to the strength of the home front's support.

$100,000 OF BLDG. FUND FOR GEORGE SCHOOL IS RAISED

Great Plans Made for Construction Following the War

RENOVATE HOUSES

Change Recently Acquired Manor House Into Teachers' Apartments

NEWTOWN, Nov. 25—The great plans in the making for improvement to the physical aspects of George School have received momentum from announcement that $100,000 of the campaign for $500,000 has already been subscribed. This is according to an announcement from the office of George A. Walton, principal of the school, who is directing the drive.

The largest gift in the 1944-45 campaign is $25,000, this being donated by an alumni member. Other donations range from $1 up with five gifts of $5,000 each, and 29 of $1,000 each.

The funds are being sought of alumni members, interested parents of pupils and other friends of the school. Two groups have been named to carry out the campaign. Personalized letters have been mailed to many, and those on the special gifts committee are making personal calls upon prospective donors.

The fund is being raised for erection of a supplementary gymnasium, an auditorium, studio shop, laundry-dormitory, and teachers' homes.

Work of erection will not start until after the war.

The property to the south of the school, purchased last April, and which "squares" off the school tract, is being improved. This property is part of the original section of land from which a portion was purchased for George School in 1892.

It consists of a manor house and several small buildings. The manor house is now being transformed into apartments for teachers, from three to five rooms. The name of "Sharon" has been given the building.

WAR LOAN PROGRESS

Again the Treasury has gone to the American people with an intensified effort to persuade them to buy War Bonds. Already many area quotas in the Sixth Loan campaign have been exceeded, and there is every assurance that the national quota will be met.

The reason for this prediction of success is in the record. Between May, 1941, and September, 1944, the American people bought and kept $33,687,000,000 of War Bonds, the amount being the current redemption value. This success is a tribute to the savings instinct and patriotism of the people. There is no reason to believe that they are any less interested in savings or that their patriotism has abated. So it seems to be fair to forecast the success of the current campaign.

But much of the credit must be given to the War Bond sales organization. It has learned how to appeal to the people not only to buy within the ordinary limits of their capacity, but at times, to advance into the sacrifice zone. It has educated them to the demands of the war for money, and it has devised such a variety of sales plans that nearly any one can find a plan to fit into his budget.

The Treasury has backed up the organization by issuing a variety of bonds and stamps and by persuading corporations and individuals to finance advertising campaigns which carry a strong appeal to the people.

Much is said about the investment and savings advantages of these bonds, but the great reason for buying them is to hasten the day of victory. The war effort which is being carried on at such great sacrifice on the battle fronts needs the money, and that is reason enough to buy the limit.

TOUGH ON THE NAZIS

Dark as the military picture appears for the Nazis, they are faced to face with a fact still more distasteful to the true Hitlerite mind. They have been told by Herbert Backe, minister for food and agriculture, that Germany must now depend upon her own food resources, that food taken by Germany from vast areas outside her own borders during the last five years was no longer available. The tone of Backe's address was described by London as gloomy.

Regardless of the conclusions at which economists may arrive upon hearing Backe's appraisal of Germany's position in regard to food, the announcement should have a deteriorating effect upon Nazi morale.

It has been apparent ever since Hitler seized Austria in 1938 that the Nazis did not intend to depend entirely on the Reich to wage the great wars in which they became engaged. One can understand what distress a Nazi must feel when he is reduced to eating food raised in Germany, and cannot have the satisfaction of knowing that his food has been filched from the starving Greeks or Poles.

The good old days when the clerk insisted they were cheaper if you took a whole carton.

ANDALUSIA

Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. Pickersgill, Mrs. J. Widdows and Mrs. W. G. Pickersgill spent last week in Memphis, Tenn., visiting Warren G. Pickersgill, S. 2/c.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edelman attended the funeral of Mr. Edelman's sister-in-law in Philadelphia on Wednesday.

Mrs. Walter Kiwi underwent an operation on Monday in the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia.

Dr. George L. Smith, Jr., U. S. N. R., is expected home for a few days' visit. He is stationed in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack James entertained at Thanksgiving dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Woolven, Haddon Heights, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weston and children, Mount Weston, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carey entertained Mr. Carey's daughter, to living with instructions, "for Mrs. Loring," he said, "and one wouldn't do you any harm." He took Ella's hand and smiled at her.

Returning to Judith's room, Miss Meredith admitted him with a finger on her lips. Judith was asleep. He stood by the bed and looked down at her. She looked not at all like the girl in the white bathing suit who had sat up at the edge of the pool, whose blue eyes had blazed at him.

He had her wrist, his finger on her pulse. He put her hand down on the counterpane and told Miss Meredith that he would be within call. His room, he had learned, was just next door.

When he left, his mother was waiting for him. She said, "You must be tired."

"Never felt better. Poor kid, she might have had a fracture out of this."

They went downstairs to the butler's pantry and Mary watched her son consume chicken, tongue sandwiches, and a bottle of beer. She said, "It was absurd to drag you up here, but she asked for you and Ella was frantic. Eva too, but she controlled herself. I don't suppose Ella ever realized how much Judith means to her, until now."

Matthew rejoined, "I didn't mind. Looks as if I'd a new patient out of it too," he added calmly. "Not that there's anything too wrong with Mrs. Loring except glands and overindulgence."

Mary rose, "I'll go back to the cottage."

"I'll take you over," said his mother, "it's just a step. Judith might need you; besides, Ella might take it into her head to call you."

Going through the vast dining room beside her, he paused suddenly to ask, "What did happen, exactly?"

"Jimmy Treadway came over after you left. He had a gang with him and they went swimming."

"Hasn't he a pool of his own?"

"Two, but it appears that he called Judith and asked her to join them in a swimming party and she refused, so the mountain came to Mohammed."

"How nice!"

"There wasn't anything out of the way," Mary went on, "except that Jimmy and a couple of the others had been drinking and there was a sort of roughhouse and in the general confusion Judith slipped—"

"Or was pushed?"

"I didn't see it," said Mary, "none of us did. Eva had gone to bed; Judith was in bed too, reading. As far as I could discover, she was thrown by accident, and so hit her head."

"Who threw her?"

"Jimmy Treadway, I think. He was frantic. Raved on about ambulances, hospitals, brain specialists. He was nearly out of his mind. He kept saying, 'Judith, speak to me, until someone shushed him and we finally got his gang to take him away. He's phoned at ten-minute intervals. Not, however, since you came, so I hope we are rid of him until tomorrow.'"

Matthew went out on the steps with her. Mary produced a little flashlight and switched it on. She reached up to kiss his cheek, saying, "Do get a good sleep. We all feel better because you are here."

He watched the little light go down the path, flicker around a bush, turn a corner and disappear.

Matthew went upstairs and to the room allotted him. Very super-colossal: Many windows, a great wide swan bed, chaise longue, deep chairs, fancy radio, and a huge, gleaming bathroom. Ella does herself well, said Dr. Norman to himself, almost dropping a shoe but remembering in time.

On the bed lay a pair of rather small, very chaste pajamas, blue and white striped. Pajamas and a safety razor and a tube of cream. Matthew viewed the pajamas with academic interest and threw them on a chair. He slept until a little past five when he woke without benefit of alarm clock.

Matthew turned the alarm switch off and lay there, blinking, trying to orient himself: Villa Capri. His mother, Judith, next door. No one had called him, all night.

Judith had slept while Nurse Meredith sat beside her. Twice she had awakened only to sleep again. On each occasion she had asked, drowsily, "Is Matthew here?" and Miss Meredith had replied, "Yes, Miss Lambert, Dr. Norman is just next door." And had raised the eyebrows of her mind, but not in disapproval.

Matthew got up and stretched. He went softly to his streamlined bathroom and behind its glass doors the shower thundered over him. He dressed rapidly and soon knocked on Judith's door.

Miss Meredith admitted him. The patient was asleep. She looks sixteen, he thought. He wished Treadway was there, he would like to knock him down.

Nurse Meredith's report was brief and unimpressive. Matthew went over to put his finger on Judith's wrist. "She'll do," he said, adding that he understood Dr. Morrow would be in, early.

He went quietly from the room but Eva was there in the corridor, in a silk robe.

"She's fine," announced Matthew quickly. "I am sure there is no cause for anxiety. Your difficulty will be to keep her quiet. If Dr. Morrow hasn't suggested a day nurse, you might. It would come from a little better from you than from me as I haven't any business on this case," he reminded her, smiling.

"Indeed you have," contradicted Eva; "she wanted you, we all did. Thank you for coming, Matthew."

He touched her shoulder, said "I'll come back, first chance I get. In a day or two anyway. . . if the office slackens. And you can call me any time. Tell Judy to behave herself and I'll be seeing her socially pretty soon. How is Mrs. Loring?"

"She's sleeping—and she thinks you're quite wonderful."

"I am," he agreed, "but few appreciate it," and laughing a little ran down the stairs, his bag in hand, and over the bright lawns to ward the salt-bath.

Will Re-Calculate Insurance Benefits

Due to their return to work, will benefit from the Board's decision in the Philadelphia area.

To prevent confusion or misunderstanding, Mr. Pease issued the following cautions:

(1) Increased benefits will be available only to workers 65 or older, who have claimed benefits and who subsequently have worked in jobs covered by the Social Security Act, and, generally, at higher pay than their former average monthly wage. The benefit amounts of widows, orphans or aged parents whose benefits were based on wages up to the time of an insured worker's death, cannot be changed.

(2) Benefits will be re-calculated upon request of beneficiary.

(3) The announcement does not mean that any person may receive benefits while working in jobs covered by the law. The law provides that benefits must be suspended for any month in which the beneficiary makes more than $14.99 on a covered job.

(4) There is no need for anybody who has been working in covered employment after he filed a claim to ask for a re-computation of his benefits as long as his pay stays as high as his average monthly wage between January 1, 1927 and the date he filed his claim. On the other hand, if his pay starts going down—as a result of illness, reduced hours, loss of his job or for any other reason—the worker who is 65 or older should consult the nearest office of the Social Security Board at once.

The Kensington field office of the Social Security Board is located at 3297 Kensington avenue, Philadelphia 34, Pennsylvania. A representative is at the Bristol Post Office on the second and last Thursday of the month from 1:00 to 3:00 p. m.

In time, Mr. Pease pointed out, the new ruling will prove beneficial to many workers who attain age 65 and face the possibility that reduced pay, no matter what the cause, may result in reduced benefits. In the past, he said, some of these workers have chosen to "freeze" their benefits amounts by filing a claim, even though they intended to keep on working. That protected them against any drop in the benefit, but it also prevented any increase. The net effect is that a worker, upon reaching 65, may "peg" his benefit so that it will not be reduced but can be increased on the basis of his future work record.

COMMUNICATIONS

Editor, Courier:

Being one of the spectators at the Bristol high school football game Thanksgiving Day, with such a wonderful crowd on hand, it seems a pity that we here in Bristol cannot afford to have a decent field. There is plenty of space at the high school field to put it in a first-class school field. It sure was a shame for Bristol to have those boys play on a muddy field such as it was Thursday. It rained on Tuesday and here it was Thursday, the field still muddy, and then there was no effort made to throw a little dirt or sand in those mud holes. Let's hope that the authorities will look forward and remedy this situation.

BRISTOL ROOTER

Editor, Courier:

I was a spectator at the football game Thursday played at Bristol high school field between the Bristol high school team and the Morristown high school team. I enjoyed the game. There was a wonderful crowd, the weather was ideal, the two bands were liberal with their music and the interest and enthusiasm of the crowd was all that could be desired.

The field was atrocious, the system of admittance and exit were terrible, one small gate to admit 2000 people and then after the game all of the other gates were kept locked and the 2000 people had to squeeze through the one small gate.

I also noticed that the high school did not display the flag from the school building staff.

These complaints may sound like a grouch but I think they are worthy of noting so that improvement will be made for games in the future.

American 3rd Army Rumbles Nearer To Saarbruecken

Observers indicated that the Germans have employed at least a dozen of their best divisions to halt the drive across the Cologne plains. Doughboys of the American First Army clawed from tree to tree in the Hurtgen Forest area. They fought into the outskirts of Weisweiler and near Wendau went forward half a mile.

Hard fighting was in progress on the American Ninth Army front in the vicinity of Aldenhoven, Lohn and Patter, but the Yank troops remained poised along the Roer River without yet attempting a crossing.

In the Netherlands, the British Second Army held against the fierce Nazi counter-attack that drove them from Hoven, and, elsewhere, shoved the Germans back to within a mile of Venlo on Dutch-German border.

On the eastern front, Russian forces surged deeper into Hungary with the capture of eight more towns on the northeastern approaches to Budapest. The Red Army's gains further severed enemy communications between the Hungarian capital and the town of Miskolc. In Czechoslovakia, other Soviet columns drove forward on a 30-mile front, seizing the railway station of Cerna near the Hungarian border.

Marshal Stalin, in a special order of the day, announced that the Germans now have been driven from the lands of Estonia with the capture of Oesel Island guarding the mouth of Riga Gulf.

On the Pacific war fronts, General Douglas MacArthur announced in the Philippines that a Japanese destroyer and two troop transports, seeking to reinforce Leyte Island, have been sunk in Ormoc Bay. Another Japanese transport was driven to the beach in flames. It was estimated the enemy lost at least 4,500 men in this series of sinkings resulting from American air force strikes.

Fierce ground fighting continued on Leyte Island with American infantrymen cutting out hard won gains in the Ormoc corridor. Driving south to Ormoc, the 32nd Division crossed Leyte River and repulsed a Japanese counter-attack.

A sharp increase was noted in Japanese air activity at Leyte, but the enemy lost 42 planes in trying to attack American positions. The smashing American B-29 raid on Tokyo continued to highlight Pacific war news with the disclosure in Washington that heavier and more devastating attacks are being planned for the Japanese capital. Brig. Gen. Haywood S. Hansell, Jr., commander of the new 21st Bomber Squadron that carried out the mission to Tokyo, expressed it this way:

"From now on, Japan will bleed internally."

Radio Tokyo spent most of its time on the air making a nearly endless series of understatements to convince the Japanese citizenry that the Superfortresses were "not able to achieve much of anything" after all. The credulity of Japanese radio audiences immediately became a matter of conjecture.

Nancy Koch, aged 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Koch, Quakertown R. D. 2, was admitted to the Quakertown Community Hospital to receive treatment for abrasions of the forehead, legs and hands she received when she fell from an automobile between Pleasant Valley and Applebachville.

Miss Martha Leighton, State College, spoke to the Middle Bucks County Senior Extension Club at the Grange Hall at Plumsteadville, Wednesday evening, on "Courtesy."

Miss Leighton's definition of courtesy was "To do and to say the kindest things in the kindest way." She also pointed out that discourtesy happens most often when individuals are in a hurry or are embarrassed, and that courtesy begins at home. "If you want good manners when you are out, you must practice them at home," she warned. In her opinion, Emily Post should not be followed closely; that it is better to do the thing that will make the situation run most smoothly.

At the conclusion of her talk, members of the club were selected to dramatize different courtesy rules.

It was announced by the president, Harrison Myers, that there will be an exchange of gifts at the next meeting which will be held at Chalfont Grange Hall, and also the election of officers for the coming year.

NEWPORTVILLE

Mrs. Frank Smith, Fergusonville, has received a telegram that her son, Sgt. Frank Smith, has been removed from a Naval hospital in Hawaii to the United States.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Watson Sine, on November 29th at eight p. m. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.
